RBI'S BIG CHALLENGE: NEGATIVE INFLATION AHEAD, NO CHANGE IN REPO RATE

India's monetary landscape entered a complex phase on 17 November 2025 as fresh data signaled a growing policy dilemma for the Reserve Bank of India. According to an SBI Research report, retail inflation in India — excluding gold — is expected to remain negative in the coming months, creating an unusual deflationary trend that challenges traditional policy responses. This rare inflation pattern has placed the RBI in a difficult position, as persistently weak prices could slow economic momentum while also limiting the effectiveness of future monetary actions. Despite the evolving price dynamics, the Reserve Bank of India has chosen to keep the repo rate unchanged at 5.50 percent, retaining its neutral policy stance. The central bank appears cautious, signaling that any shifts in monetary policy will depend on how inflation, core demand, and global economic conditions unfold. The combination of negative inflation pressures and a steady interest rate has become one of the most important financial developments in India today, drawing close attention from markets, banks, and policy analysts.

₹7,172 CRORE ELECTRONICS INVESTMENT CLEARED AS INDIA LAUNCHES ARKA-GKT1 CHIP

India's technology sector received a major boost as the government, through the Ministry of Electronics & IT (MeitY), approved the second tranche of the Electronics Components Manufacturing Scheme (ECMS). The clearance is set to unlock ₹7,172 crore in fresh investments, paving the way for 11,808 new job opportunities across the high-tech manufacturing ecosystem. This expansion marks a significant step in India's push to strengthen domestic electronics production and reduce import dependency. In a landmark innovation within the same update, India introduced the ARKA-GKT1, the nation's first energy-efficient edge-computing chip. The launch of this chip signals a major leap toward semiconductor self-reliance and technological sovereignty, positioning India as a rising contender in the global chip manufacturing and advanced computing landscape.
